CALL FOR PAPERS

The 8th ADA International Education Conference June 23-25, 2025

Beyond Schooling: Education for a Rapidly Changing World

What kind of education do we want our institutions to provide? How can we ensure meaningful learning takes place? How can countries effectively support young people in transitioning from education to employment? What are the key challenges, and which interventions yield results?

These are the critical questions the 8th ADA Education Conference seeks to explore. As an academic forum bringing together scholars, policymakers, researchers, educators, and students, the conference aims to address these pressing issues and contribute to ongoing debates within the educational community.

In a rapidly changing world shaped by economic shifts, emerging job markets, technological advancements, and social and environmental challenges, education must evolve. With such needs, education should go beyond schooling to encompass learning that is grounded in real-world and contextualized experience, applied knowledge, and relevant competencies. Educational institutions should aim at creating environments conducive to ecological learning, preparing young people to become productive citizens and equipping them with the skills needed for success in the workforce.

We invite researchers, educators, policymakers, and employers to submit proposals that examine the challenges of education and learning in this dynamic context and offer insights into effective strategies and solutions.

In line with this, the 8th ADA Education Conference, which will include panel discussions, research presentations, and poster sessions, is seeking submissions related to the following conference topics:
